POSITION ANNOUNCEMENT

Marshfield Clinic Research Institute

National Farm Medicine Center

Position: Project Scientist – Evaluation

JOB SUMMARY

This Project Scientist – Program Evaluation is a new position. This individual will serve as a scientific collaborator in designing and implementing evaluation strategies for research, intervention and outreach endeavors of the National Farm Medicine Center and the NIOSH-funded National Children's Center for Rural and Agricultural Health and Safety. Additionally, this individual will have opportunities to lead or participate in evaluation activities of scientists and program leaders throughout the Marshfield Clinic Research Institute. Job functions will include: establishing plans for evaluation methods, data collection and analysis of results; developing toolkits or templates to train others in implementing evaluations; facilitating the utilization of evaluation findings to improve programs; and communicating findings to program staff, scientific colleagues and the general public.

JOB QUALIFICATIONS

Education

Education qualifications must be from a school whose accreditation is recognized by Marshfield Clinic Health System. Required education is a terminal degree (PhD, EdD, MD, DrPH) in evaluation, public health, social sciences, behavioral science, health informatics or related field.

Experience

Minimum of one year of progressive experience in program evaluation, data management, data entry, and software such as SPSS, SAS, STATE, or RedCap.

Community Information

Marshfield is a city of 20,000 in central Wisconsin that is built on health care, transportation, manufacturing, agriculture and technology industries. Low cost of living, low traffic and low crime make Marshfield an ideal community for families and young professionals. Exceptional public/private school districts are complemented by a two-year branch of the University of Wisconsin and Mid-State Technical College. Enjoy four seasons of outdoor recreation with hiking, biking and cross-country ski trails, two beautiful golf courses, three area disc golf courses, hunting, fishing, and, in nearby Wausau, arguably the best downhill skiing in the Midwest. In addition, the Marshfield Clinic Health System YMCA is undergoing major expansion. Explore a variety of clubs, shops, restaurants, a brew pub and indoor recreation venues. If you are between the ages of 18-40 and are looking to grow professionally/socially/personally, join more than 75 others in the Marshfield Young Professionals.
